Hurricane season is here

Raleigh, N.C. – June 2, 2022 – The 2022 Atlantic Hurricane Season is officially underway. Forecasters with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) are calling for an above-average season for the seventh consecutive year.

NOAA’s projection calls for a 70 percent probability of 14 to 21 named storms, of which, 6 to 10 will become hurricanes, and 3 to 6 of those will develop into major hurricanes (storms with winds that meet or exceed 111 mph).

For the first time since 2014, a named storm did not develop in the Atlantic basin prior to June 1st. However, a system that includes remnants of Hurricane Agatha that formed in the Pacific before crossing over Mexico, could develop in the Gulf of Mexico this week.

“This state is exposed to tropical systems and many other natural disasters,” said Russ Dubisky, a spokesman for the Insurance Federation of North Carolina (IFNC). “Planning ahead is crucial to your safety, and it’s a good routine for people to review their insurance policies well before a storm is imminent.”

The biggest steps towards preparing for hurricane season include a thorough insurance review and developing an emergency plan.

The Insurance Federation of North Carolina offers the following information to help you prepare this hurricane season:

Emergency plan:

Have a plan in place if a storm is threatening and evacuations have been ordered.

- Prepare the exterior of your home and yard if strong winds and water are imminent. Nail any loose shingles or boards, and cover windows with plywood or storm shutters. Bring lawn furniture, potted plants, garbage cans, grills and outdoor decorative items into the garage. Cut weak limbs and those overhanging a structure and remove yard debris.

- Decide ahead of time where you'll go if an evacuation order is issued, and have more than one alternative – the home of a friend or family member, a hotel, a shelter. Be sure to listen to NOAA Weather Radio or local radio and TV stations for evacuation information and instructions.
- Plan what to take with you. Disaster kits should include prescriptions, bottled water, clothing, flashlights, a battery-powered radio, batteries, items needed for pets, insurance policies, your home inventory, passports/drivers licenses/ID cards, birth and marriage certificates, and bank account numbers and other financial information. With COVID-19 still prevalent, you may want to include masks, gloves, and disinfectants.

Insurance review:

Talk to your agent or company to update, ask questions, and make sure you have the right coverages in place.

- Flood insurance is not included in a standard homeowners insurance policy, and floods (including storm surge brought on by hurricanes) are the most common natural disaster in the U.S.
- A deductible is the amount of loss paid by the policyholder before insurance kicks in. Different insurance companies offer different types of deductibles, which may be a specific dollar amount, a percentage of the home's insured value, or a combination.
- A home inventory is a great way to ensure you have adequate coverage for your home's contents. A home inventory is a list of all your personal possessions and their estimated value.
